I, Kwon Ko, declare that I live, think, and act based on the following life principles:

Meaning

I acknowledge my mortality and find meaning of life in pursuing my dreams, which is to identify and solve the most important problems that confer the greatest benefit to humanity. My contributions stem from rigorous reasoning grounded in materialism, pragmatism, and existentialism, always aiming to maximize their impact on the greater good. I devote all my energy and time to this purpose.

Focus

I prioritize my dreams above all else, even over matters essential to sustaining my own life. I am willing to fight for them even if it can risk everything I have. I do not compromise and remain consistent, refusing to be distracted by money, societal honor, fame, popularity, or desire. I never be discouraged by any hardships until the end of my life.

Value

I strive to earn objective respect from future generations by learning, growing, and improving everyday upon who I was yesterday. I own my mistakes, apologize when needed, and have the courage to give up when necessary. I treat all individuals with dignity, free from bias based on appearance, religion, age, race, gender, sexual orientation, political beliefs, or socioeconomic status. I understand people through direct interaction, not through secondhand information. I respect societal norms and systems while evaluating the broader impact of my actions.

As I learn and grow, I will refine this creed, but my commitment to humanity and love for society will never change.
